COURSE PROJECT

Jennie Ing is a local artist and an experienced tutor. She intends the course to be fun and experimental. Concentrating on relief printmaking without a press the emphasis will be on creating designs, colours, shapes and forms.

Linocut is a fascinating and versatile technique involving the cutting away from the surface of a piece of lino, rolling ink over the remaining area and transferring the ink to paper using pressure. You will work on your own themes with imagery gained from your choice of photographs, sketches, memories etc. Skills will be developed through experimenting with mark making, colour and tone. All are welcome: complete beginners and those with some knowledge will enjoy the course and find something new to takeaway.

CORE SKILLS

- Colour theory and how to mix ink colours
- Relief and mono printing methods
- Work from photographs to develop your own source material
- Composition and design to achieve a well balanced result
